21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS GUAM FRIDAY, Feb. 16—A large task force of Superforts struck against the Japanese aircraft carrier of Nagoya today, as the same time it was being announced that the three major islands in the Marianas have been linked together as the center of B-29 operations.

The big Superforts bombed industrial targets, and Radio Tokyo admitted the sprawling factory area of Nagoya was set afire.

The big bombers took off from both Saipan and Tinian.

The raiders were described officially as composing a "large task force" for the first time since B-29 operations began, indicating the planes went out in one of the largest formations ever sent against Japan.

Tokyo Radio, however, said there were 60 planes in the raiding group.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—American minesweepers, leading 10 transports jammed with fresh invasion troops, have begun clearing the entrance to Manila bay for an apparently imminent assault on Corregidor island, Radio Tokyo said today.

The thrust got under way at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday (Manila time) with a terrific air and sea bombardment of Corregidor, where the original American garrison on Luzon went down to defeat in April 1942, Tokyo said.

Two battleships, four cruisers and five destroyers participated in the bombardment, the broadcast said. Corregidor's batteries replied and a "furious gun duel" ensued with the "invading surface craft," the enemy account said.

Toward evening, Tokyo said, 20 American minesweepers entered the narrow channel between Corregidor and Bataan peninsula, which forms the northern rim of the gateway to Manila bay. Japanese guns sank one minesweeper and the remainder were "effectively checked," Tokyo said.

"There were indications that these minesweepers were being followed by some 10 enemy transports apparently carrying fresh invasion forces," the broadcast said.

NATIVES HUNT FOR MINES IN STREETS OF MANILA

IT'S SAFETY FIRST in Manila, and hundreds of happy, liberated Filipino natives are taking no chances with the Japanese mines scattered through the streets of the Philippine capital. Here is a typical crowd of mine-seekers going over the streets, yard-by-yard. Reports indicate that much damage already has been done, though in many areas the Japs used artillery shells as mines. ### FDR VISITS IN SOUTH FRANCE

First Word Of President's Whereabouts Comes From Marseille

PARIS, Feb. 15 — President Roosevelt has visited Marseille in Southern France on his way back to the United States from the Big Three conference at Yalta, French sources said today.

A French press agency dispatch said an announcement of the President's visit was published in Marseille newspapers. The dispatch did not disclose the date or purpose of the visit, however.

It was the first word of the President's whereabouts since the Big Three conference ended last Sunday. Prime Minister Churchill visited Athens yesterday.

Reliable American and French sources denied published reports that Mr. Roosevelt intends to visit Paris. His special adviser, Judge Samuel Rosenfeld, was in Paris yesterday, however, on a general tour of liberated countries to study their needs.

BRITISH BARE FEW DETAILS OF NEW SPITFIRE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—Britain's mysterious new Spitfire XIV fighter plane has a five-bladed propeller and can fly at the rate of 450 miles an hour.

This was made public here today by the British information service, which also said the new "Spit" could fly a 600-mile round trip mission. Details of the plane's performance have been a closely-guarded secret since it first went into action on D-Day.

So fast is the new Spitfire, said the British service, that one time when two of them were chasing a formation of German Focke-Wulfs and found they had another group of F. W.'s on their tail, they were able to overtake and shoot down two of the first bunch and then turn so fast they dodged those chasing them.

One of the chasers, it was added, tried to turn as fast as the Spitfires but couldn't make it, stalling and spinning into the ground.

COW LIQUOR RATION

COLUMBUS, Feb. 15—Ohioans will be able to purchase only one unit of whisky during the four-week liquor ration period beginning next Monday, State Liquor Director Robert M. Sohngen announced today.

Sohngen said it was necessary to extend the period because of decreased commitments to Ohio by distillers.

MAY EXPECTING QUICK APPROVAL OF NURSE DRAFT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee predicted today that the committee would approve by nightfall the bill to draft nurses to the armed forces.

May made his prediction as the measure behind closed doors after hearing some war department plain talk that no end of the fighting in Europe is in sight.

May said he believed the nurse draft issue would be brought before the house next week. The need for the legislation was emphasized by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson in a surprise appearance before the committee.

"The view of those responsible for military operations is that the end of the fighting in Europe is not in sight and that our forces there face a great deal of hard fighting," Patterson said.

"Hard fighting means more casualties, and more casualties mean more medical and nursing care."

Patterson reported that 400,000 soldiers have been wounded already in this war, 52,926 of them in the three weeks ending January 21, 1945.

"Those figures do not cover the sick," he reminded.

Only by a nurse draft, he said, can the Army get the 16,000 nurses it needs immediately to bring its nursing corps to the required 60,000 mark. An additional 250 nurses will be needed monthly for replacements.

U. S. CASUALTIES NOW STAND AT 782,180 TOTAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—U. S. combat casualties announced here reached 782,180 today.

This was a jump of 17,348 from last week's compilation.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said Army casualties compiled through February 7 totaled 693,342.

These casualties, reflecting losses through January, included 135,510 killed, 408,553 wounded, 58,556 prisoners of war, and 90,723 missing. Of the wounded 202,813 have returned to duty.

To the Army total was added 88,838 Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard casualties announced up to today. They included 33,536 dead, 40,607 wounded, 10,221 missing, and 4,474 prisoners of war.

Stimson said Army ground forces alone have suffered 394,874 casualties on the Western Front from the June 6 D-Day to February 1. Of these 63,410 were killed, 273,997 wounded and 57,467 missing.

HARD TIMES IN STORE FOR SUBS

Naval Experts Say Better Atlantic Weather To Be Costly To Germans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—German submarines, which have degenerated from a first-class menace to a first-class nuisance, are likely to find it even tougher in the months ahead.

That's the view of naval experts today. They base their opinion on one factor—the improving weather in the North Atlantic.

The better the weather, the more effective are the anti-submarine operations. It means that planes operating from escort carriers in the "sub-killer" groups can fly more frequent and longer patrols. It means better visibility at night, when the U-boats usually come to the surface to recharge batteries.

Furthermore, better flying weather will permit Allied airmen to strike with greater frequency—and more accurately—at enemy submarine bases. Since the German rout in France, most of these bases are along the Norwegian coast.

American submarines, on the other hand, are continuing to take a heavy toll of Japanese shipping. Their latest haul by the Navy department—31 ships sunk, including a converted light cruiser and two smaller combat craft—increased to 1,020 the total of Japanese ships sent to the bottom by U. S. submarines alone.

But American submarines are in a more favorable operating situation than are the U-boats in the Atlantic. They have access to bases closer to the enemy homeland. And the weather in that part of the Pacific usually is good.

Weather in the North Atlantic is at its worst in December and January. An improvement begins to set in during February, which suggests that unless the Germans come up with some new tricks, the U-boats will not do as well this month as last.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in their regular monthly summary of U-boat operations, reported that while German subs were slightly more active in January, merchant (Continued on Page Two) HACKENSACK, N. J., Feb. 15—The Hartford Indemnity Co. has been authorized to collect $18,831 embezzled by an employee. The award was made by a New Jersey circuit court jury, but not against the embezzler.

The man ordered to pay up was the embezzler's bookmaker. The company charged that there was where its money went.

GREEK UNITY PLEA SOUNDED BY CHURCHILL

Britain's Support Pledged In Rehabilitation Of Strife-Torn Nation

CHEERED BY ATHENIANS

Prime Minister Proud Of English Role In Protecting City

ATHENS, Feb. 15—Prime Minister Winston Churchill paused in Athens on his way home from the Big Three conference yesterday to deliver a stirring call for Greek unity and to pledge Britain's support in rehabilitating this strife-torn country.

Churchill drew a tremendous ovation from the people of Athens, where only a few weeks ago British armed forces had intervened in the bloody Greek civil war.

Churchill told 30,000 cheering Athenians that Greece has a bright future and that he hoped she would "take her proper place in the circle of the victorious nations."

"There has been much misunderstanding and ignorance in many parts of the world, and there has been misunderstanding of issues, but now these matters are clearing up and all over the world there is coming a true understanding of the part Greece has played and will play in the future development of Europe," he said.

"I am proud of the part the British army has played in protecting this immortal city from violence and anarchy."

"We will march with you to the ends of the dark valleys—until we reach the broad highlands of justice and peace. From the bottom of my heart I hope Greece will take her proper place in the circle of the victorious nations and among the nations which have suffered from the war."

"Let right prevail, let party hatreds die, let there be unity," he concluded. "Greece forever."

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden also spoke briefly, expressing the hope that Greece would enjoy greater happiness and prosperity in the future.

Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, premier of the new Greek government, thanked the British leaders for their visit and for their help in terminating the civil war.

Immediately after the speeches, the Greek cabinet received Churchill, who came away with a box of cigars.

Archbishop Damaskinos, regent of the greater Athens area, tendered a dinner last night for Churchill and his official party, including Lt. Gen. Ronald Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece.

THREE SENATORS ASK SCRAPPING OF WORK BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—Three prominent senators—two Democrats and a Republican—today proposed to scrap pending "work or else" legislation in favor of a new manpower bill carrying no provisions to draft workers.

The substitute was introduced by Sens. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., Harley M. Kilgore, D., W. Va., and Homer Ferguson, R., Mich., as the senate military affairs committee was winding up hearings on the work-or-else bill.

That measure is designed to make men 18-45 subject to draft for war work under threat of fines or prison terms.

The new proposal was certain to find considerable backing among committee members. There were predictions that a majority of the 18-man committee would swing behind it rather than support the principle of compulsion represented in the work-or-else bill.

Boiled down to its essentials, the substitute would give the force of law to War Manpower Commission rules governing employers. It also would offer inducements, such as traveling expenses, to workers to accept war jobs away from home.

Argentina Quarantine Tightened On Eve Of Interamerican Parley

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—The quarantine of Argentina was tightened today on the eve of the Interamerican conference in Mexico City—a meeting to which she has not been invited.

By the time the conference begins next Wednesday in the Mexican capital, Argentina probably will be the only nation in this hemisphere not at war with the Axis.

Chile, Peru, Ecuador and Paraguay raised themselves from the status of associated to United Nations yesterday by signing the United Nations declaration. All have declared war on at least one Axis nation.

Venezuela and Uruguay, the only remaining Associated Nations in this hemisphere, are expected to become belligerents soon.

Argentina was barred from the Mexico City conference because her sister republics refused to recognize what the United States calls the "fascist military clique" in control of the government.

She is now faced with the hard fact that she will have to sit out all other forthcoming conferences which will decide the fate of the world for years to come. Her isolation in the world will become more and more pronounced unless she changes her ways.

The United Nations will convene in San Francisco in April 25, to charter a world security organization. They will meet again sometime after the war in Europe to arrange a peace settlement.

Decisions which will vitally affect Argentina, as they will every other country in the world, will be made at those conferences. But they will be made without the advice or consent of Argentina if her present status continues.

Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew said each of the new United Nations decided to join on its own initiative. But some quarters believed the United States had let it be known that countries which have not declared war had better do so if they want a "full voice" at San Francisco or a seat at the peace table.

The sudden change in status among the six relatively minor nations led to belief that some as yet undisclosed plan is afoot that might force Argentina to return to democratic processes.

There was a recent rumor that after all other Latin American nations declared war, Argentina then would be given a chance to make it unanimous and thereby prepare the way for her return to good graces. But Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., has revealed that a declaration of war by that country will not be enough.

He said the United States does not contemplate any change in its non-recognition policy toward the Argentine regime "until it has been conclusively demonstrated by unequivocal acts that there has been a fundamental change of Argentine policy."

FRAYED GEORGE BILL NEAR VOTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—The battered George Bill moved toward the floor of the house today with Republicans ready to renew their fight for still tighter controls over federal loan agencies.

House Republican leaders called a meeting of their steering committee to plan party strategy in advance of today's house session. They wanted to add further restrictions to the bill which the senate passed to remove the multi-billion dollar Reconstruction Finance Corporation from the commerce department before the senate votes on Henry A. Wallace's nomination as secretary of commerce.

It appeared likely that the (Continued on Page Two)

NAZI FLANKS LAID OPEN TO BERLIN, DRESDEN

Yankee, British Bombers Give Close Support To Terrific Thrust

BREAK-THROUGH HINTED

Canadians Driving On Ruhr Reach Rhine Opposite Emmerich

By United Press
Berlin said today that Russian forces supported by American and British bomber fleets had broken across the Neisse river on both sides of Forst, strategic rail hub 62 miles southeast of Berlin and the same distance northeast of Dresden.

More than 1,550 American war planes renewed direct support of the Red Army today, smashing again at Dresden and Cottbus, strategic transport center just 12 miles west of the Red Army spearheads at Forst. It was the closest support action yet given to the Red Army by the U. S. Strategic Air Forces.

Both Nazi and Soviet reports indicated that Marshal Ivan S. Konev's army was running rampant in a lightning drive laying open the flanks of the German defenses before Berlin and Dresden, the Saxony capital which has been staggered by Anglo-American aerial onslaughts.

A German military spokesman reported that the Russians had advanced to points northwest and southwest of Forst, on the west bank of the Neisse. The admission indicated a major break-through the Neisse line and the planting of Soviet spearheads about 60 miles from both Berlin and Dresden in that sector.

Moscow advised that south of Forst the Russians were storming the Neisse river line before Saxony, and that one column pushed within 45 miles of Dresden in an apparent break across the Neisse.

The Nazi spokesman, quoted in a broadcast from Berlin, said Konev's army and that of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov had made a junction southeast of Berlin.

Zhukov's First White Russian Army has been checked along the Oder before Berlin for several days while Konev was developing his sweep through Lower Silesia. Observers took the Berlin report to mean that they now were joining forces for a possible assault on the capital from the East and South.

ITALY CAMPAIGN NAILS DOWN BIG GERMAN FORCES

ROME, Feb. 15—The hard-fought Allied campaign in Italy has nailed down a large segment of the German Army and prevented the Nazis from reinforcing their Eastern and Western fronts at a critical stage of the war, Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army, said today.

Marshall, enroute back to the United States from the Crimea conference, ended a three-day inspection of the Italian front with the highest praise for the Allied ground and air forces in this "forgotten" theatre of war.

His unannounced tour took in a number of front-line sectors held by American and Allied troops of the Fifth Army, and the general spoke personally to senior officers and GIs throughout the battle area, as well as members of the U. S. 15th Air Force.

In a statement issued at the close of his tour, Marshall expressed satisfaction with the way the Allied ground forces have conducted this campaign under the most arduous conditions.

"The difficulties of a mountainous country with few roads and under winter conditions are very real," he said. "The strength of the enemy's defensive positions in such country is equally apparent."

an atmosphere of foreshadowing some new development.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters on Luzon remained silent on the enemy's claim of a naval bombardment and imminent landing on Corregidor, but confirmed that Army Liberators dropped another 107 tons of bombs on the fortress island Tuesday.

Corregidor has been bombed almost daily since Jan. 23. Its capture would unlock Manila Bay to American shipping.

Radio Tokyo also reported that 100 American carrier planes bombed and strafed the entire beachline at Aparri in Northern Luzon for a half hour last Tuesday. Tokyo said American reconnaissance and raids in the Aparri sector had "gradually become intensified since Jan. 26."

An American landing in the Aparri area would clamp a pincer on the bulk of Japanese forces remaining on Luzon island.

shipping losses were about the same as in December.

They also mentioned that the enemy submarines were making use of new devices which enabled them to penetrate further "into focal areas of shipping close in shore." They added that the result of counter-measures have been encouraging.

What these new devices are, the navy is not telling. It may be that one of these is a gadget that permits the submarines to operate at great depths for prolonged periods.

Regardless of the new devices, it is apparent that Germany's submarine force has been unable to disrupt the Allied supply lines to Europe. Naval experts doubt that Germans are able to put to sea even half the number of U-boats they sent against Allied shipping in 1942 and 1943. At the peak, the Germans were believed to have maintained as many as 200 submarines at sea with at least twice that number in reserve.

It is noteworthy that despite their increased activity in January, the enemy submarines were unable to exact a greater toll of shipping. This told clearly how effective Allied anti-submarine measures are.

Despite the great improvement in the Atlantic submarine situation, Allied naval leaders continue to be prepared for the worst and are maintaining their anti-submarine organization at a high pitch of efficiency.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH BURGLARY OF LOCAL CAFE

One of the burglaries which have kept Circleville police busy recently has been solved, Chief W. F. McCrady announced Thursday.

Held on charges of breaking and entering is Henry Arthur Wallis, 19, of West Union street. Chief McCrady said Wallis had admitted breaking into the Mecca Restaurant, West Main street, January 7. Police recovered two boxes of pennies, one of which contains $12. The other contained a larger amount of pennies, police said. Also recovered were two fifths of whiskey.

Chief McCrady said Wallis admitted taking eight fifths of whiskey and $25 in paper money besides the pennies.

Wallis was arrested early Wednesday by Patrolmen Marshall and Martin when he was reported to have spent large amounts of pennies at Chillicothe but when he was taken there for questioning he finally admitted the local burglary, the chief said.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR SGT. DOAN TO BE SUNDAY

Memorial services for Sergeant Edward Doan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Doan, of Portsmouth, will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Biglow Methodist church of that city.

Sergeant Doan, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Doan, was killed in action January 31 in Germany. He was serving with the 311th Infantry in the 78th Division. He had been overseas since the last of November.

Mr. and Mrs. Doan and family formerly resided in Circleville.

FRAYED GEORGE BILL NEAR VOTE

publicans would ask the house to reject a rules committee decision which refused special parliamentary safeguards for the Republican amendments. If they fail in that move and fail to win adoption of the amendments, they probably will fight to have the bill sent back to the banking committee. Such action would delay passage of the measure beyond the March 1 date set for the senate vote on Wallace.

The Republicans lost a rules committee battle in behalf of their amendments just as they had lost an earlier one in the banking committee. Administration supporters prevailed in both cases.

Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, R., Mich., asked the committee for special safeguards assuring house consideration of two amendments.

One would reorganize the board of the Export-Import Bank to provide for five members appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate. It would indirectly exclude the secretary of commerce, who now is one of the trustees.

The second amendment would change the War Powers Act to prevent the President from making future transfers of executive agencies as he did when he placed the RFC under the commerce department.

Rules Committee Chairman Adolph J. Sabath, D., Ill., told reporters the house parliamentary amendments would not be germane to the George bill; that they were not properly related. Sabath said, however, there would be no such objection to an amendment simply making the secretary of commerce ineligible for membership on the board of the Export-Import Bank.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck, R., Ind., a rules committee member, said he failed in an attempt to have the committee postpone action until next Wednesday and to have Wolcott's bank amendment made germane.

He said there was "unanimity of opinion" that congress should reassume controls over government lending agencies. He asserted that the banking committee had not given the question proper consideration and that the George bill ought to be returned to committee for further study.

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 15—Fire which destroyed the Frank H. Reese greenhouse here last night caused damage estimated at $100,000. Two hundred thousand potted plants valued at $50,000 and a collection of old guns and relics.

and Goch through a maze of steel and concrete defenses.

In the Pacific, the surviving Japanese in Manila were being herded into the old walled city on the waterfront in bloody fighting.

The co-ordinated assault on Germany was being stepped up by land and air. More than 1,300 British heavy bombers carried the unbroken aerial offensive into its second day with a double blow at Chemnitz, 38 miles southwest of Dresden, and smaller-scale attacks on Berlin and other targets. Dresden was still in flames from earlier bombings.

The British and Canadians in the west were supported by an aerial bombardment that in the last 24 hours spread destruction up and down the Rhineland in the path of their advance.

British forces to the south drove to within three miles or less of Calcar and two miles from Goch.

CAGE TOURNEY BEGINS TONIGHT

Roll and Bowl Expected To Be Filled For Start of Annual Classic

Fans are expected to crowd the Roll and Bowl Thursday night when the 1945 Pickaway county basketball tournament gets under way.

The program opens at 6:30 p. m. with Jackson and Darby township schools clashing. Three more games will be played before the first session is completed and fans of the eight schools will be present in numbers to cheer their favorites.

Warmer weather is expected to bring out larger crowds. Many fans have been unable to attend games because of icy roads and several games were cancelled. All roads are reported in good shape now and fans from all parts of the county will head for Circleville.

Following the Jackson-Darby contest Washington and Walnut will meet at 7:30 p. m.; Salter Creek will oppose Deer Creek at 8:30 p. m. and Scioto and Pickaway tangle at 9:30 p. m.

Action will be almost continuous all evening. There will be only five minutes between games with teams getting 10 minutes rest at the half of each game. But during the intermission the teams which play in the next game will be warming up and turning in their lineups.

Winners Thursday night will return Saturday to oppose the four seeded teams, Ashville, Monroe, Perry and New Holland.

Semi-finals and finals will be played next week. Four trophies will be awarded: each of the three teams which go to the district tournament will win one and the school which displays the best sportsmanship.

GRAEF MARKS UP HIGH SCORE AS TWO LOOPS BOWL

Rotary won three games from Kiwanis No. 2 team; Jaycee No. 1 won two from Jaycee No. 2 and Legion blanked Kiwanis No. 1 in Fraternal league matches at Roll and Bowl Wednesday night.

Stonerock had 504 high series in the city league. Purina tied in the best team game, 803, and the highest actual total, 2272. Starkey's helped by a handicap, had 2333 high team score.

Graef set the pace in the Fraternal league, hitting a 516. Dr. Heine had 502. J. C. No. 1 had best team total, 2044 and a 743 high game.

TIGERS TO PLAY AT GREENFIELD FRIDAY NIGHT

Teams Will Be Battling For Second Place In SCO Loop

Circleville high school cagers Friday night will play their last road game of the 1944-45 South Central Ohio league basketball season.

cothe while Washington was dashing Circleville hopes.

The teams will be fighting for second place honors behind Chillicothe which now holds the lead and is expected to stay on top. Circleville won 41-40 when the teams played here but Greenfield will be favored on the McClain floor.

Coach Roy Black said Thursday his lineup will include Bob Lovensheimer, Freck Heath, Jim Dade and Jack Hennis with the fifth starter still undecided. Leonard Hill, Earl Palm and Dale Delong seem to have the inside track with the rest of the varsity still trying for the berth.

The McClain lineup is expected to be the same as the one which came here. Mercer, White, Glassner, Uhl and Williams are expected to be in the lineup. Glassner played only about half the game here because he went out on fouls. Last week at Chillicothe he and Williams fouled out and when they left the Chillicothe team started spurring.

Reserves of the two teams will open the program at Greenfield at about 7 p. m.

FARMERS TO BE PAID FOR APPROVED DITCHES

Payments for ditching will be made on farms where the farmer has had his ditching plans approved by the county AAA committee prior to the construction of the ditch. The farmer may make application for approval to his neighboring community committeeman.

Both open and tile ditches are provided for under the 1945 AAA program. The payments on either type of ditch must be within the limits of the farm allowance and up to that amount will be 8c per cubic yard of dirt moved, but not in excess of $5.00 per 100 feet for open ditches and 40c per rod for tile ditches. The payments are made for both repair and new construction.

Proper drainage is one of the easiest methods of increasing production and thereby cutting down production costs. Proper drainage helps prevent the formation of gulches in fields, increases yields, makes the soil work easier and permits the cultivation of fields within a few hours after a heavy rain.

A group of neighboring farmers can, with the approval of the State AAA committee, pool their farm allowances in order to construct or repair a community ditch. The county AAA committee will arrange with the group for securing the necessary approval.

LIEUTENANT TO FACE TRIAL AS WIFE SLAYER

Officer Confesses, Later Changes Plea, But Leads Officers To Grave

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 15.—Sheriff T. Alex Heise said a murder charge would be filed today against Lt. Samuel C. Epes, 27, who buried his small, blonde, school-teacher wife in a foxhole when she came here to say goodbye before he went overseas.

Mary Lee Epes, 26, a graduate of William and Mary college, was to have returned to her classroom at Jacksonville, Fla., today. The schoolboard gave her a brief leave of absence. Instead her body will be sent to Atlanta for burial.

Epes told officials that four days after he buried his wife, he returned at night and improved the camouflage above her grave by posting a stolen army sign which said: "latrine closed."

Epes, weak from loss of blood in a suicide attempt, led officers to the grave yesterday.

Deputy sheriffs said Epes confessed the slaying at the Fort Jackson hospital where he was in custody of Army officers.

Confession Denied
The army, a few hours later, however, sent civilian officials a signed statement by Epes in which he denied the slaying.

"I did not murder my wife," the statement began. It ended by saying "I am not doing this to alleviate any punishment for myself, but I'm trying to save my family and my wife's family any blame and publicity and notoriety—I don't care what happens to me."

Grave Revealed
The statement added to the confusion that began on Jan. 29 when the young lieutenant reported to police that his wife had disappeared on a shopping trip. He broke under questioning yesterday and led officials to her grave.

Details of the alleged confession were not revealed pending his release by army officials to civilian authorities sometime today.

State police returned an autopsy last night which said: "Mrs. Epes came to her death as a result of a severe blow on the head. Also she had been drugged before her death."

Mrs. Epes disappeared two weeks ago. Her husband, attached to a medical corps unit at Fort Jackson, started a nationwide search for her when he told authorities she had dropped from sight after he left her on a downtown, Columbia street corner. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Williams of Jacksonville came to Columbia to help with the search and posted a $1,000 reward for her safe return.

Clings To Story
The young lieutenant, who met his future wife while she was in college and lived with her at Richmond, Va., from the time of their marriage in 1940 until he was inducted in 1943, clung to his story until two days ago.

Tuesday he slashed his wrists in an unsuccessful attempt at suicide. He told army officials that his wife had died of an overdose of sleeping tablets and that he had lost his head and buried her on an abandoned maneuver grounds.

Yesterday he led Army and civilian officials to the shallow grave south of Fort Jackson. The body was recovered from one of 40 well camouflaged foxholes dug by troops on maneuvers.

"We would never have found the body if he hadn't led us to it," Sheriff Heise said. "If his suicide attempt had been successful, we would have never known what happened to his wife."

Found In Foxhole
The small body sprawled in the foxhole was dressed in a pin striped suit and red blouse. There was blood on the side of the blouse and on her underclothing. The autopsy showed marks of a blow on the head and on one foot.

Officials believed Epes killed his wife January 27. Two days later he reported her missing and asked help in finding her. In his statement to Army officials in which he claimed she died from an overdose of sedatives, Epes was quoted as saying in part:

"Mary Lee was ill and upset. She had in her possession sodium secobarbital that had been given her for relief purposes by an Army medical officer."

"Finds Wife Dead"
"We came home Saturday night (January 27) at 10:30. We had a couple of drinks but were not intoxicated. Mary Lee took a couple of the capsules and later in the evening she took about 10 more.

"When I found her, her pulse had stopped. . . . I was panic stricken. 'I didn't know what to do—and almost went out of my head."

"I took my wife's body about a mile beyond the fort and buried her."

Deputy sheriffs, still without a motive in the slaying, said Epes killed his wife in their room, put her body in the rear trunk of their automobile, and drove to the maneuver ground, 50 feet off the Leesburg road, south of Columbia.

Friends said they had never seen any evidence of ill feelings or disagreement between the two. Mrs. Epes' principal at Jacksonville said she had been very eager and excited when she asked him for a leave of absence shortly before Christmas.

Her pupils were upset over her disappearance. One 11-year-old

RATION BOARD AIRS PLAN TO PROTECT TIRES

A program designed to help fleet owners in getting the maximum mileage from truck tires and to help safeguard the continuous operation of trucks in essential services against delays or stoppages as the civilian tire situation becomes more acute was announced Thursday by the Pickaway county ration board.

OPA tire inspectors are now making a written report of every truck tire on all fleets operating girl said "she was the sweetest teacher we ever had."

Mr. and Mrs. Williams said their daughter had been very devoted to her husband and they thought well of their son-in-law.

three or more units in the Columbus district.

The data gathered by the OPA tire inspectors will be recorded in quadruplicate and will show the condition of each truck tire examined. It also will note if repairs and recaps need attention. If the examination reveals any abuse of tires which may be remedied, this fact will be reported. Through this program the true condition of truck tires on all fleets of three or more vehicles in the district will be on record and factual information will be available to aid in determining how many of each kind of truck tires will be required from month to month to keep these fleets operating.

A copy of the record form showing the facts revealed in the examination of each fleet truck tire will be held by the owner. A copy will be filed in the district office and a duplicate will be kept on record at the local board while the original will be forwarded to the OPA regional office in Cleveland.

OPEN DARDANELLES

TURKEY has opened the strait of the Dardanelles to ships carrying munitions to Russia. As a neutral, she has hitherto bared them to vessels of warring countries. This will save 3,000 miles over the present route around Arabia and up the Persian Gulf. Evidently Turkey is betting on the Allies to win, and soon.

Russia's great weakness has long been the lack of an ice-free port which cannot be shut off by another power. Odessa on the Black Sea is a fine harbor, but the Dardanelles, which Turkey keeps closed in wartime, shuts the Black Sea off from the Mediterranean. Search for an ice-free port on the Pacific was one cause of Russia's ill-starred war with Japan, 40 years ago.

The opening of the Dardanelles provides another advantage, in addition to better army training and supplies, which the Russians did not possess in the last world war. It was to open this strait that the British in 1915 sent an expedition to Gallipoli, which was lost in one of the worst defeats in their country's history. The opening of the Dardanelles without fighting has not received much publicity, but it is one of the heaviest blows that Hitler has yet received.

SAVING FATS

RECENT pleas for the salvage of waste fats have mentioned their use in soap, rather than ammunition. And many a modern woman, handing to her butcher the can for which she receives red points, has wondered why. Now the War Foods Administration has explained.

There is plenty of soap for normal use, they say, even for the washing country in history. But soap making requires fat, as our grandmothers well know. And stocks of soap-fats, which in recent years meant coconut oil and similar vegetable products, are not so great as before the war. Last month the WFA was forced to reduce manufacture of package and bar soap—ordinary toilet soap and laundry soaps—in units of less than 25 pounds, for civilian use, from last year's 90 percent of 1941 averages to 85 percent.

With so much of our population no longer classed as civilians there will be plenty for everyone. The things the housewife must remember are, first to buy only what she really can use; and second to turn in waste fats. Then enough can still be manufactured to keep everyone clean and healthy.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—Popular predictions that the end in Europe is a matter of days or a couple of weeks, are not justified by inner military facts. They represent glib hopefulness of commentators, not the soundest American military judgment.

The Nazis show intention of fighting for everything, and particularly for Berlin, the capture of which may require more time than is being allowed for the end of the war. Nazi morale is weakened, but not broken. More Germans are taking advantage of opportunities to surrender when confronted with an easy chance to escape from Hitler (or is it Himmler?), but not on a large scale.

Truth is no large force surrendered either to the Russian advance through Poland across the Oder, or to us. The bulk of their gang clings to the Goebbels idea that no thing can be gained by throwing down their arms. They display no desperate shortage of any line of equipment, except planes.

Periodic thaws already are developing to slow down the attacks. The Reds had to cross the Oder at Breslau in boats. The weather on our front can hardly become worse than it has been for weeks (bitter cold, snow and thaws) but at present thaws are creating natural floods to add hazards to the artificial dam flooding of the upper Roer. The Canadians are currently accomplishing great success around Kleve, but a few miles ahead is the difficult Rhine river and a little to the south, the Rhine water hazard is only 15 to 18 miles in front of us.

The ground is bad in front of the American 9th Army and British 1st, and it may not be solid for two months. This is the condition facing General Eisenhower's promise of a large scale offensive.

The Russians have not yet been stopped, but they have been slowed down for ten days. After fighting for bridgeheads over the Oder on the direct route to Berlin, they had to stop in that center of the line, not particularly because German opposition although it was strong, but in order to protect the flanks of their extended supply lines. They next strove for Stettin to upset an organizing German counter-attack from the north and to lop off the Danzig and Pomeranian industrial districts.

Initial success was not great and the battles are still in progress. Hitting them in the south, they met unexpected success being 35 miles beyond Breslau (northwesterly) at this moment. Here they had bypassed many good Nazi defensive positions and entered the plains of Saxony where the ground greatly favors further advances.

But how can you get immediate or even early surrender out of this situation? As long as the Nazis retain control, there is little prospect of surrender, and there is no immediate prospect that they will lose control. They obviously hope to make another Stalingrad out of Berlin, and may, at least, make it a Cassino. They have lost no great masses of men or equipment in the Winter fighting and no peace emissaries have yet come into our lines. And ahead, March is the worst month for military action.

Their actions indicate that when the end comes, it is likely to take an unexpected form. The Nazis clearly intend to surrender only army unit by unit (as in our Civil

PREVENTION OF CORONARY DISEASE

By Dr. Herman N. Bundesen
President, Chicago Board of Health

Certain types of people are especially likely to have disease of the coronary arteries, the arteries which supply the heart muscle with blood. These persons must be guarded by their physicians so that everything possible may be done to keep coronary thrombosis—the formation of a blood clot in the coronary artery—from developing.

What types of persons are especially likely to have coronary thrombosis? To begin with, the patients who have already had one attack. The chances of a second attack are considerable in these persons; second, those who have the condition known as angina pectoris, a disorder in which there are severe attacks of pain under the breastbone, due possibly to a spasm of the coronary arteries; third, the middle-aged and elderly people who have definite evidence of heart damage, which is shown by the electrocardiogram, an electrical tracing of the heart beat. Others who may be especially susceptible are those with high blood pressure, diabetes, deficient thyroid secretion and polycythemia or an excessive number of red cells in the blood.

Coronary thrombosis practically never occurs in undamaged arteries. Hence, those patients who have damaged coronary arteries should be discovered, if possible, and every effort made to eliminate excessive strain of any type. According to Doctor Milton Plotz, of Brooklyn, patients who have damaged coronary arteries may have attacks of pain over the heart which may last for varying periods of time.

What steps are necessary to protect patients who are especially likely to have coronary disease? First of all, an effort must be made to decrease the work of the heart by rest in bed for a period of one to two weeks or longer, depending upon the response which occurs. A drug known as papaverine may be given by mouth or by injection, to increase the circulation of blood through the coronary arteries. Drugs which lessen the blood pressure should not be used over long periods of time. This includes such drugs as nitroglycerin.

The heart muscle may die—even though blocking of the coronary artery does not occur because the blood pressure in the coronary arteries may be reduced to the point where not enough blood flows through them to keep the heart muscle alive. It is for this reason that these patients should be protected against any severe operation. The use of anesthetics should be avoided, and any severe hemorrhage should be carefully guarded against. All of these things will cause a drop in the blood pressure and thus may be dangerous.

Disease of the coronary arteries usually can be diagnosed without much difficulty. The electrocardiogram is helpful in making a diagnosis, but does not always show the extent to which the heart has been damaged. In fact, there are occasional instances reported in which patients have died of coronary thrombosis within a day or two after the electrocardiogram has been perfectly normal, but this seldom occurs. When coronary artery disease is suspected, the patient must remain under the care of his physician so that steps can be taken to protect him.

Tomorrow, Dr. Bundesen will discuss "Fatigue and Depression." (Dr. Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his column.)

COATED TONGUE

I have a heavy coating on my tongue and must brush it several times a day to keep it clean. What causes this? H. I.

ANSWER

Coated tongue sometimes comes from constipation while, in many cases, no cause for it can be discovered. If one is in good physical condition and feels perfectly well, no attention should be paid to the fact that the tongue is coated.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Aggie's left eyebrow cocked and he touched his Vandyke. These were the words of a querulous old man—an angry and alarmed old man. They might be, also, the words of a shrewd man, who relied on attack for his defense. Aggie tried a counterattack. "Speaking of snooping, Mr. Waite, where were you the night Calder was killed?"

The other man started glacially. "You do not hesitate to assume any prerogatives, I see! I haven't the remotest intention of answering. But I do have every intention of finding out how you learned of my absence. This is my home. You've invaded my privacy sufficiently!"

"Were you—by chance—in the cellar of the club?" Aggie had counted upon the statement to have some effect. Waite's reaction was, however, an enlargement of that expectancy. The old man began to tremble. His face contracted into an expression of fury, of hate, of misanthropy and fear. His plumes flickeringly mirrored the electric lights. "Curse Sarah!" he finally croaked. "Curse the blabbing old fool! Get out of here!"

Aggie turned to Danielle. "Come on." But the girl stood still. "Haven't you forgotten to call the police?" Aggie looked at her, smiling faintly. "So I have!"

"Get out!" Waite repeated. In a hobbling frenzy, he rushed across his living room and snatched a vase from the mantel. He raised it. "Get out of here, I say!"

Aggie nodded toward the door. "We'll phone from Sarah's."

The voice at State Police Headquarters was toneless. "Dr. Davis found dead. Medicine Lodge on the Upper Lake Road. We'll send somebody at once."

"The servants are waiting there for you," Aggie said. "I'll be at my aunt's house." He hung up. The room was flooded with light. Danielle was busy tucking Sarah into the inglenook. Chillie apprehensively took their order for more coffee. "They're coming," Aggie said unnecessarily.

Sarah instructed old John in the method of setting a match to the fire laid on the grate, although John had ignited a thousand in the same place. They wanted a fire for psychic comfort—not warmth.

"Now, Aggie," she said, when she was satisfied. "It was fun." Aggie glanced at Danielle. She dropped into a chair, stretched out her legs, and nodded. "Shoot, Aggie. I'm all right now."

For fifteen minutes, Aggie talked. At the end of that time, he had given his aunt a complete description of the scene in the Davis garage. During the recital, Sarah kept touching her swollen neck with a tentative finger—and jerking it away. She seemed, nevertheless, to have taken a new lease on life; unburdened of her secret, she was very much her usual self. When her nephew finished, she said, "Hunh! George wouldn't kill himself in a million years! Too conceited!"

"But he did—apparently." "With Hank's knife? Non-sense!"

"You think Henry Bogarty is alive—and around here—and killed him?" Sarah grinned again. "Did I say so! I just said—Danielle's father hadn't a suicidal streak in his bones!"

"Then," Aggie tugged his beard, "maybe you can explain how the thing was accomplished." "I don't attempt to explain! That's your business. Or Wes Wickman's. You're a scientist. He's a cop. You're supposed to be able to think! I'm merely a woman—who knows people. I say, somebody killed Danielle's father! What do you say?" She turned to the girl.

Danielle shook her head. "I don't know. He must have done it. There's no other way. There must be something—something else—besides the cache—"

Sarah glanced from the girl to her nephew, with a strange, luminous expression. "You told Danielle?"

His eyes were abstracted. "On the way back here. The salient points. I was thinking—" Sarah made a scoffing sound. "Thinking out loud, practically! I saw you look over your shoulder toward the hill! You were thinking about that gold!"

"I was deciding I'd go up and check on it. If you'll tell me how to get to it—"

Both women were startled by that suggestion. Danielle looked at him with incredulity. Sarah was frightened. She spoke. "That, too, is Wes's affair! It's dark—three o'clock—and you can't go poking around in cellars! Suppose—somebody else sees there!"

An additional reason for going! Besides, cellars are dark—even in daytime." "I won't tell you how to get in!" "Then I'll run up just to see if anybody is fumbling around there. If Dr. Davis was murdered—somebody might be. In a few more minutes, this place is going to be waked up by sirens and headlights. Attention will be on Danielle's house." He had risen. "I think this is an excellent time to be in that cellar. Besides—used to play games in the wine cellar. It was fun."

Sarah glanced at the girl opposite her. Firelight emphasized the concentration with which Danielle was looking back at Aggie. The girl's head finally shook and she said, "Don't go there, Aggie. It might be—dangerous. And this isn't the kind of business for a—a—person like you to get into."

"Danger!" he repeated. "You mean—I should stay out of it because it's dangerous?" Danielle nodded. "That's exactly what I mean! After all, you're a professor—not a cop. You can't go barging into a cellar at night."

He seemed perplexed. "But—I'm keen to enjoy beating Wes to it! I don't mind danger." He noticed the way in which his aunt was regarding the girl. "Right, Sarah. Send her out of the room—and give me the dope. And—Danielle. Remind me to tell you about the time I was lost on the ice floe for a week—and a night in Cambodia—and one thing or another. Danger! Good Lord!"

Sarah grinned. Danielle went reluctantly into the kitchen. Sarah pulled her nephew close. "You must shift from that pajama top," she said. "To a sweater. You look absurd." Aggie started, glanced at his clothes, and blushed. In a whisper, she told him.

Five minutes later, he left the house. The moon had vanished. Clouds covered most of the sky. In the east, a few stars still shone. Through the trees, in the distance, lights twinkled at the Davis house, where the servants were queasily waiting for the police. Aggie cut up the hill toward the club on a footpath. The building would be locked. Jack Browne and the servants would be asleep on the upper floors. He did not wish to waken them.

He came to the edge of the trees, moved from one lilac to another, and finally onto the side porch. There was not a light in the clubhouse. He swung out a screen. The first window was locked; the third was not. Aggie raised it and went in. He smelled moth flakes when he passed the stuffed mouse head. He used a flashlight once, for less than a second, to find a way through the tables and divans in the main lounge. In the same manner, he passed through the dining room to the pantry and from the pantry into the steamy, institutional smell of the club kitchen. He found the door to the main cellar, carefully opened it, entered, closed it, and started down the steps.

When he was midway on them, he listened. An automatic pump was going somewhere below. It made a muffled, rhythmic noise, but, at its beats, there were minute silences. Aggie heard nothing in them. This cellar had windows—opaque squares that let in little light by day and none at night. He risked another flicker of light. Anyone who happened to be outside would have seen it—but he had to get a bearing through the place. He moved again in the dark—past the furnace and the bins of ashes gritted under his feet. A door at the end of the furnace room opened into a corridor. He found its handle. Beyond that door were no more windows, so he turned on his light and looked the switch. There was dust enough and cobwebbing enough to suggest that the passage had not been used for years. But the concrete floor was blurred with the evidences of feet going to, and coming from, the wine cellar.

New projects of large importance should thrive to an astonishing objective because of innovation, unusual skill and ingenuity. However, there may be obstacles, delays and setbacks, with the menace of fraud, imposition and sinister undercurrents to be valiantly met and vanquished.

Those whose birthday it is, may anticipate an exceptionally lively and progressive year, with certain new projects or undertakings out of the routine under exciting stimuli. Novelty, originality, ingenuity may carry objectives to high goals. Perfidy and subtle intrigues may influence the health, spirits and the family unless managed wisely.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay "The Authority on Authorities"

BIDS BASED ON SKILL
WHAT WOULD be the right bid for one player may be the wrong one for another. In other words, you are not trying to bid the contract which theoretically should be made, but the one which you yourself should be able to make. The skillful cardman may take certain chances whose outcome depends on his finding the best play, whereas the same chance would be losing bridge for some less adept manipulator of the pasteboards.

None of the diamond declarers made their game. All of them lost three tricks—two in clubs and one in spades. One pair, which was timid and not very strong in playing ability, stopped at 4-Diamonds and made it.

The 4-Hearts declarers got varied results. Only two of them made it, the rest being set. In each case, West led three consecutive clubs. Those who were set ruffed the third, then tried to drop trumps in three rounds. This left East with a trump. When he used it on a diamond, he cashed the club A, he switched to a spade, and the defense got two tricks in that suit.

The successful 4-Hearts declarers simply discarded a spade on the third club. No matter what was then led, South could run four trumps and his diamonds, plus a spade, for 10 tricks and game. Discarding on that third club was a very simple play, but a very important one which a lot of pretty good players have not yet learned.

Stalin in Driver's Seat At "Big Three" Confab? Let Russ Reach Berlin First, Urges Columnist

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Cynics are not especially agreeable to meet. They have seen too much. They would not let you believe in anything or anybody. For example, the cynic I met yesterday inquired: "Don't you think it's pretty pantomime, this meeting of Stalin, Churchill and Roosevelt? You know—the Asiatic conqueror, Stalin, being polite to the other two? He has little idea of paying any attention to the wishes of the European and the American. He has already made plans for his own control of Germany and the rest of middle and southern Europe. There's no uncertainty in his war aims. But he is going to give the other boys the fun of appearing to be important."

"May be. May be," I replied. "But I do hope Mr. Roosevelt speaks up and says: 'Marshal Stalin, don't forget you couldn't have done this without my tanks and my gunpowder. So don't get too high handed.'"

Regardless of the cynic's remarks about Stalin, I rejoice that it is the Russians who are getting to Berlin—first. I refuse to be worried by the thought of the advantage this success will give the Soviet at the peace table and in the post-war world.

Surely the most vital job of the moment is to defeat the Nazis. If the Russians bear the brunt of the fighting at the siege of Berlin, this will mean that they and not the Americans risk the greater loss of men.

Lutheran Ladies Hold Valentine Day Program

Patriotic Theme Also Stressed At Assembly

Fifty members and guests attended the February session of the Ladies' society of Trinity Lutheran church held Wednesday in the parish house. A combined patriotic and Valentine's Day program marked the affair.

Mrs. Charles Beck opened the program by reading an interesting article, "Lincoln and His Step-mother." Mrs. William Korn read a poem on Washington and an article, "Lincoln's Tribute to Washington." Mrs. R. D. Good read an interesting article on "Mr. Valentine" and presented a Valentine to Mrs. Mary Schleyer, the oldest member of the society present for the meeting.

The business hour in charge of Mrs. Denny Pickens, president, opened with group singing. Mrs. Frank Turner read the scripture lesson found in Galatians 6:10 and led the society in prayer.

The Rev. G. L. Troutman gave a short talk, urging all members to attend the Lenten services and to practice personal evangelism. He also asked members of the group to attend the "World Day of Prayer Service" Friday at the church when the Ladies' society will be hostess to all surrounding Lutheran congregations.

Mrs. George List gave an interesting reading on the topic from the Outlook, "Rehabilitation for Victory."

Mrs. Frank Turner gave a report on the board meeting at Grace Lutheran church which she attended together with Mrs. Denny Pickens.

Mrs. Gladden Troutman was appointed to assist Mrs. Milton Keilstadt with the Reading Circle books.

Mrs. Allen Arbogast and Mrs. Edward Sengenbrenner were appointed to assist the committee in visiting the sick.

Luther League
Thirty members were present for the February meeting of Luther league in Trinity Lutheran parish house. Devotions were in charge of the Rev. G. L. Troutman. Paul Helwagen read the topic, "How to Make Friends and Lose Them." This was followed by discussion.

The league decided to attend church every Wednesday during Lent and to meet at the parish house at 7:15 to go to the service in a body.

Plans were made for a skating party for Tuesday, February 20, at Gold Cliff. Members are asked to take a guest and to meet at the parish house at 7 p. m.

Walter Melvin was in charge of the games for the evening.

Ruth Melvin and members of the February committee, Elinor Wolford, Mary K. Morgan, Ned Schreiner, Jack Palm and Bill Sengenbrenner, served lunch at the close of the evening.

MADY CHRISTIANS STARS
Mady Christians, currently co-starring with Oscar Homolka in the now immortal "I Remember
Mama," will be "Grand Central Station's" star on Saturday. Miss Christians' most recent credits include stellar performances in "Watch On the Rhine" and the successful revival of "Hamlet" in its original, uncensored form. She'll be supported by Horace Braham, whom Broadwayites remember as the star of Karel Capek's robot play "R. U. R." Ethel Owen, now featured in the Olsen and Johnson

"Laffing Room Only," Nicholas
Joy, of "Ten Little Indians," and Renee Terry, last seen in the musical comedy "Hi Ya, Gentlemen,"

With Me" is Eddy Arnold's plea in song, when the Tennessee Plowboy appears as Roy Acuff's guest star on the "Grand Ole Opry," Saturday. Acuff sings one of his most popular unpublished tunes, the sentimental "We Planted Flowers on Our Darling's Grave," and as his encore, later in the program, sings "Picture on the Wall."

RADIO NEWS NOTES
Ethel Barrymore, star of "Miss Hattie," has been nominated for an Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award, known as "Oscars," for "the best performances by a supporting actress" in "None But the Lonely Heart," with Cary Grant.
Carleton Young, who portrays
Sleuth Jim Lawton on the Sunday
"Hollywood Mystery Time" program, is drawing kudos from movie critics for his work in 20th Century-Fox's "Thunderhead, Son of Flicka," previewed this week in Hollywood.
There was a happy reunion on the Al Pearce Show when Comedian Danny Beck was heard on the program for the first time. Danny and Al used to tour together in vaudeville many years ago when Al was a singer and Beck was doing a comedy routine of the same type made famous by the late Harry Langdon.
